

BRAND GUIDELINES

Logos

PRIMARY LOGO

Your primary logo is your main identifier and is often in either a landscape or portrait format. This makes it optimal to be used for things such as on the front of business cards. Your primary logo often includes the most information such as a tagline or an est. date, but can always be simplified down.

TAGLINE

Our tagline is a concise, memorable phrase that captures the essence of our brand's mission and values. It serves as a verbal logo — a powerful statement that communicates who we are and what we stand for. The tagline should be used strategically across high-visibility touchpoints, such as advertisements, packaging, and key digital platforms, reinforcing our brand message.

LOGO MARK

Your submark logo is arguably one of your most used, especially if you operate mainly via social media. It is a smaller, simplified variation of your logo that is optimised for smaller places. It is commonly used for your social media profile images, stickers, watermarks, letterheads and any collateral - this logo really can be used anywhere. Essentially, it is a more subtle way of displaying your branding that isn't so 'in your face'.

Typography

Brand typography refers to the specific fonts and type styles selected to represent a brand's personality and tone. It includes guidelines for font families, sizes, weights, and spacing, ensuring consistency across all written materials and digital assets. Consistent use of brand typography helps create a professional, cohesive appearance, making content more readable while reinforcing the brand's identity.
